30	Legally stipulating that the authorisations for increase of the price of services provided by monopolies are bound to the results achieved by them (e.g. higher efficiency, lower losses in the delivery of the service/gas, electricity, water distribution)	In process of implementation	constant	SEWRC, CRC		Strengthening competition and well-functioning markets of goods and services	The Ordinances regulating the prices and quality of services provides for mandatory compliance with achievement of target levels of service quality. Water and sewerage operators must set in their business plans annual service quality target levels according to the Ordinance on the LongTerm Levels, Terms and Procedure for the Formation of Annual Target Levels of the Quality of Water and Sewerage Services, approved by the Ministry of Regional Development and Public Works (MRDPW). In electricity supply – a delivery service which is provided by just four companies countrywide – a Methodology has been developed and approved in order to guarantee uninterrupted supply of electricity, through monitoring the frequency and duration of registered interruptions by means of calculating a System Average Interruption Duration (SAID) Index, for which target levels have been set until 2013. This approach leads to improvement of economic effectiveness and, hence, to lower costs per unit of electricity and improved quality of the service. There are also plans to improve price setting policy so as to encourage a reduction of electricity consumption. The statutory instruments on price regulation are aligned with the amendments on the Law on the Energy Efficiency and with the Law on the Renewable and Alternative Energy Sources adopted by the National Assembly.  To foster increased effectiveness, there are also plans to improve the method for determination of the X factor, which is used to measure the relative effectiveness and thorough which the prices charged by the distribution and supply companies are directly adjusted.  The price regulation ordinances, as well as their accompanying documents under the SEWRC jurisdiction, are intended to influence prices with a view to ensuring an uninterrupted supply, improving technical and technological levels of the quality of service indicators and maintaining competition on the market, which is the best regulator of prices and quality.

The Law on the Amendment of the Law on the Credit Institutions introduces into Bulgarian legislation the requirements of Directive 2007/44/EC with respect to credit institutions.  The Law on the Amendment of the Law on the Credit Institutions introduces registration requirements for financial institutions which carry out activities that are not exclusively banking (such as own funds lending, financial leasing, factoring etc.). At present, these institutions are under notification requirements (within 14 days after the commencement date of their activity as a non-banking financial institution), and their number is as large as 400. Once the amendments to the Law are adopted, the BNB should issue a special ordinance determining the documents that must be presented for registration to the BNB Deputy Governor heading the Banking Supervision Department. The revisions oblige the financial institutions other than banks to meet specific requirements in order to register and to carry on business. The requirements concern the legal form of business organisation, the origin of the capital and, in respect of certain activities, also a minimum amount, reliable and competent managers and qualified owners.  After receiving the data and the documents, the BNB will grant or refuse registration.

New education structure: basic education is completed after the 7th grade, which levels the playing field of students with respect to the general education minimum. The good national practices of foreign language schools are transferred, with intensified study of languages, ICT, computers and vocational education in the 8th grade.  2. The secondary school stage is divided into two parts: first (8th – 10th grade, leading to a diploma of secondary education), and second (11th – 12th grade).  3. Short-term orientation of education to meeting labour market requirements is introduced, for the purpose of focussing on the general educational training of all students at all schools to give them comprehensive schooling after which, by short-term courses, to qualify them for starting work.  After the adoption of the law, a new curriculum with new textbooks will be elaborated.

84	Legal regulation of the State Fund for Guaranteeing the Sustainability of the State Pension System	In process of implementation	December 2008	MF, MLSP	EUR 362 million for 2008	Improving the financial sustainability of the state pension system and particularly of the Pensions Fund of the Public Social Insurance.  The establishment of a special reserve fund, which resources would represent a separate self-contained part of the central government budget, is planned. These resources will be managed and structured into investment portfolios, which will be entrusted for management to financial institutions.  The fund will pool 50 per cent of the proceeds from privatisation receipts to the central government budget, 25 per cent of the republican budget surplus for the relevant year, the proceeds from concessions, as well as transfer of other revenues in pursuance of a law or an act of the Council of Ministers.  The accumulated in the fund resources will serve only to cover the deficit in the Public Social Insurance budget for the relevant year, with the specific amounts of these transfers being determined by the annual State Budget Act. To ensure a possibility for accumulation of resources, transfers to the Public Social Insurance budget will not be made in the course of 10 years.	The draft Law on a State Fund for Guaranteeing the Sustainability of the State Pension System was approved by the Council of Ministers in July 2008 and has been submitted to the National Assembly fro consideration.
